Introduction

Purpose of the Guide

The purpose of this guide is to help you prepare for the Special Agent selection process with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA). This guide will familiarize you with several phases of the selection process, including the multi-phase assessment battery consisting of the Test of Observation and Recall, the Writing Exercise, and the Structured Panel Interview. This guide will give you an opportunity to review some test question examples and provide you with an overview of assessments. If you do not have a lot of experience taking job selection tests, this guide will help you prepare for the testing process by letting you see questions similar to those on the actual tests.

NOTE: This guide was created to prepare the applicant for testing; the vacancy announcement is the official document and applicants should review it closely. This guide is not a replacement for the vacancy announcement.

Organization of the Guide

This guide is organized into four sections. The first section provides an overview of each phase of the entry-level DEA Special Agent selection process. The remaining three sections provide helpful information and preparation materials including sample test questions.

Section I: Overview of the Selection Process

The mission of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) is to enforce the controlled substances laws and regulations of the United States and bring to the criminal and civil justice system of the United States, or any other competent jurisdiction, those organizations and principal members of organizations, involved in the growing, manufacturing, or distribution of controlled substances appearing in or destined for illicit traffic in the United States; and to recommend and support non-enforcement programs aimed at reducing the availability of illicit controlled substances on the domestic and international markets.

In carrying out its mission as the agency responsible for enforcing the controlled substances laws and regulations of the United States, the DEA's primary responsibilities include:

- Investigation and preparation for the prosecution of major violators of controlled substance laws operating at interstate and international levels.
- Investigation and preparation for prosecution of criminals and drug gangs who perpetrate violence in our communities and terrorize citizens through fear and intimidation.
- Management of a national drug intelligence program in cooperation with federal, state, local, and foreign officials to collect, analyze, and disseminate strategic and operational drug intelligence information.
- Seizure and forfeiture of assets derived from, traceable to, or intended to be used for illicit drug trafficking.
- Enforcement of the provisions of the Controlled Substances Act as they pertain to the manufacture, distribution, and dispensing of legally produced controlled substances.
- Coordination and cooperation with federal, state and local law enforcement officials on mutual drug enforcement efforts and enhancement of such efforts through exploitation of potential interstate and international investigations beyond local or limited federal jurisdictions and resources.
- Coordination and cooperation with federal, state, and local agencies, and with foreign governments, in programs designed to reduce the availability of illicit abuse-type drugs on the United States market through non-enforcement methods such as crop eradication, crop substitution, and training of foreign officials.
- Responsibility, under the policy guidance of the Secretary of State and U.S. Ambassadors, for all programs associated with drug law enforcement counterparts in foreign countries.
- Liaison with the United Nations, Interpol, and other organizations on matters relating to international drug control programs.

What It Takes to Be a Special Agent

The DEA is America's resolute force against the illegal drug trade. DEA Special Agents pursue the most notorious trafficking and terrorist organizations that threaten our communities. We apply unique training and skills – across the country and around the world – to fight drug trafficking.

Special Agent duties include:

- Gather and prepare evidence to help prosecute major violators of U.S. drug laws
- Partner with other law enforcement agencies to target violent drug offenders in local communities
- Arrest subjects and seize assets connected to illicit drug trafficking
- Work with officials in foreign countries to share intelligence and target international criminals

Test Preparation Guide

Test Preparation Guide

Initial Application/Qualifications Review

Congratulations! You are ready to begin the DEA Special Agent application process. Once your application materials have been received, the DEA Human Resources Division will review them to determine if you meet the eligibility requirements and basic qualifications.

If it is determined that you meet the eligibility requirements and basic qualifications, you will be required to complete additional selection testing which includes a physical task assessment, followed by a multi-part test battery consisting of written assessments and an oral interview. You must successfully complete (pass) these assessments to be eligible to receive a conditional letter of employment and continue in the application process. The remainder of the process includes: a medical evaluation, urinalysis drug screening, polygraph examination, psychological assessment, background investigation, and final hiring decision. Applicants must successfully complete and pass all of the aforementioned screening processes to be considered for employment. Failure to successfully complete/pass any of the screening processes will result in the applicant being disqualified and removed from consideration. The DEA will not reimburse costs related to selection testing such as travel to and from the testing sites.

Phase 1: Physical Task Assessment

You must successfully complete and pass a Physical Task Assessment (PTA) in order to be eligible to continue in the selection process. The PTA provides the DEA with an indication of the applicant's present ability to successfully participate in strenuous physical activity required during Basic Agent Training (BAT). Applicants with superior physical training and conditioning and who are accustomed to a daily fitness regime are less subject to injury during BAT. The PTA is directly correlated to the physical tasks performed during BAT and include sit-ups, push-ups, and a 1.5-mile run. Some applicants may complete their PTA in a nationwide testing center with a DEA partner. In these cases, there may be slight variations to the previously mentioned exercises. These variations would only apply to the testing process and would not alter the physical activity required during BAT. You will have up to two opportunities within 60 days upon your initial application to take and pass the PTA. You may also be required to take and pass another PTA prior to being hired.

You must be in excellent physical condition in order to pass the PTA. Therefore, it is highly recommended that you review the DEA PTA Training Video in order to properly prepare and successfully comply with the DEA Academy PTA requirements. This training video includes the 300-meter run that is administered during BAT but not administered during the hiring process. For a complete guide on preparing for the rigors of the DEA Academy, check out the DEA Academy's Preparation Program Tool Kit.

If you pass your PTA, you will be invited to complete an in-person written test battery with multiple parts. Only those applicants who successfully pass the written test battery will be referred to complete an in-person structured interview.

Test Preparation Guide

Phase 2 & 3: Multi-Phase Assessment Battery

Phase 2: Written Testing

Written testing will occur in a nationwide testing center with a DEA partner. Applicants will be administered two written tests. The tests that comprise Phase 2 – Written Testing of the selection process are:

- Test of Observation and Recall
- Writing Exercise

Test of Observation and Recall

Applicants will watch a video showing a law enforcement scenario. After watching the video, they will be tested on their recall of the scenario. The questions require that applicants use careful inspection and focused thought about what information is important and what information is not. The questions do not focus on conclusions to be made from the scenario; rather, they focus on relevant or detailed facts.

The Test of Observation and Recall measures the following critical skills and abilities:

- Attention to Detail
- Memory

Writing Exercise

The Writing Exercise presents the applicant with a given set of hypothetical facts from which a three paragraph or 150-word (minimum) and 500-word (maximum) memorandum is to be written based on the relevant pieces of information.

The Written Exercise measures the following critical skills and abilities:

- Ability to communicate in writing
- Ability to attend to detail
- Ability to evaluate information and make judgments/decisions

Test Preparation Guide

Phase 3: Structured Panel Interview

A Structured Panel Interview comprises the next level of the selection process. A panel of three raters will ask applicants a series of questions based on competencies identified as critical for entry-level Special Agents. The structured interview measures the following critical skills and abilities:

- Teamwork
- Problem Solving
- Decision Making/Judgment
- Flexibility
- Oral Communication
- Interpersonal Skills
- Self-Management

Your DEA Special Agent Recruiter or HR Representative will contact you to schedule your Structured Panel Interview once you pass your written assessments. Actual test scores are not shared with the applicants. Only those applicants who receive a passing score on all of the aforementioned assessments will continue to the next stage of the selection process.

Test Preparation Guide

Phase 4: Additional Screening Post-Conditional Offer Letter

Once an applicant receives their conditional offer letter of employment, he or she will be asked to complete additional screenings. The order of these screenings may vary but are described in detail below. In order to be selected for employment as a DEA Special Agent, the applicant must successfully pass each of the following screenings. Please note that failure to pass or not showing up or being available for a scheduled appointment of these screenings will result in your application being closed.

Drug Testing

All applicants tentatively selected for this position will be required to submit to urinalysis to screen for illegal drug use prior to appointment. In addition, each individual tentatively selected for a position will be notified that appointment to the position will be contingent upon the receipt of a negative drug test result. Failure to meet the drug testing requirements is a disqualifying factor for the position of Special Agent with the DEA.

Medical Examination

DEA Special Agent applicants must pass a thorough Medical Examination to determine whether any medical issue (or condition) could potentially affect the applicant's ability to perform the functions of the Special Agent position. This medical review ensures that each applicant's situation is reviewed on an individual basis to determine that the applicant is physically and medically capable of handling the job requirements efficiently and without hazard to themselves or others. Failure to meet the medical requirements is a disqualifying factor for the position of Special Agent with the DEA.

The Medical Examination also ensures that applicants meet the Special Agent Vision Requirements and Hearing Requirements. To review these requirements, visit <https://www.opm.gov/policy-data-oversight/classification-qualifications/general-schedule-qualification-standards/1800/criminal-investigation-series-1811/>.

Psychological Evaluation

DEA Special Agents risk exposure on the job to extremely stressful situations, harmful substances, and injury or death. Accordingly, the DEA uses licensed clinical psychologists to obtain professional expertise in the psychological assessment of applicants for the position of Special Agent. Psychological assessments are administered to evaluate applicants on the extent to which they possess personal characteristics, such as emotional stability and the ability to work under stress, in the degree required, to successfully perform as a DEA Special Agent.

The psychological evaluation consists of a written and an oral component. The written psychological testing includes three components: a Life Experiences Inventory (LEI), Part 1 and 2, the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory (MMPI-2RF) Extended Version, and the Sixteen Personality Factor (16PF) or equivalent. The tests are not timed, but typically take about two to three hours to complete.

Test Preparation Guide

The 16PF (or equivalent) and MMPI-2 contain multiple choice and true/false type items. The LEI requests a variety of background information, to include work history, from the applicant. For this reason, it is advised that applicants bring a copy of their resume with them to the written portion of psychological testing.

Following the scoring of the written tests, a one-hour in-person interview is scheduled with a licensed psychologist. A psychological assessment report is written by the psychologist after the interview.

Polygraph Examination

A polygraph is an examination process that uses a diagnostic instrument capable of measuring and recording a person's physiological reactions as the subject answers questions. Because physiological reactions can vary when subjects are telling the truth and when they are being deceptive, by comparing a person's reactions to different questions, a polygraph examiner can detect reactions that may indicate deceptive responses to specific questions. Various components of the U.S. Department of Justice use polygraph examinations, primarily for criminal, foreign counterintelligence and counterterrorism investigations, administrative investigations (internal affairs and misconduct), and pre-employment and personnel security screening.

Applicants will be contacted by the DEA Polygraph Unit to schedule a polygraph examination. The polygraph will check the truthfulness of all of your responses on a series of questions related to sensitive issues and/or topics of national security and suitability. Failure to comply with the instructions during the polygraph examination may result in discontinuation of applicant processing. Furthermore, DEA will not hire Special Agent applicants who receive a Countermeasures (CM), Significant Response (SR), or three No Opinion (NO) results on their DEA administered polygraph examination. Therefore, if you receive CM or SR results on your polygraph, you will not be eligible for hire in a DEA Special Agent position for a period of 3 years from the date of your polygraph examination. If you receive three NO results, you will not be eligible for hire in a DEA Special Agent position for a period of 2 years from the date of your last NO polygraph examination.

Background Investigation

A background investigation (BI) is a comprehensive investigation which provides information on personal history, education and work experience, personal and professional references, as well as other necessary information. Applicants are asked to submit information necessary to begin the BI in this stage of the selection process. The BI includes credit, arrest, and internal affairs checks (if applicable); interviews with associates, personal and business references, past employers and neighbors; and verification of educational achievements and employment history. DEA Special Agents are required to obtain a Top Secret security clearance. Derogatory information which surfaces during the BI may render the applicant ineligible for employment.

Final Hiring Decision

The Final Hiring Decision is made by a Special Agent Hiring Panel. The applicant's background information file, including polygraph results, drug statement, and psychological assessment report are reviewed at this time. Applicants who are approved for hire are made a final offer of employment and placed into an upcoming Basic Agent Training (BAT) class or placed on a waiting list for class assignment. Applicants who are disapproved for hiring are notified in writing that their file has been closed.

Section II: Testing Logistics

In this section, you will find answers to most of your questions regarding logistical information and basic testing procedures for each phase of the assessment battery.

When and Where Testing Occurs

The written testing and panel interview are to be completed in person at a designated test site. Applicants will complete their written tests in a nationwide testing center with a DEA partner. To schedule, reschedule, or cancel an appointment with a testing center, follow the instructions provided by the DEA partner. Special Agent Recruitment Coordinators or HR Representatives will coordinate the structured panel interview and inform applicants of the date, time, and location of the testing sessions. Applicants may be asked to attend an expedited one-day test session or multiple test sessions. An applicant must successfully pass testing in order to continue in the process.

Scheduling for Testing

Applicants will be given advanced notice of scheduled testing dates, times, and locations. Testing sessions will only be rescheduled under exceptional circumstances. Applicants with a scheduling conflict should immediately notify the Special Agent Recruitment Coordinator in the Field Division office where they applied. For written testing scheduled in the nationwide testing center, the applicant must follow the steps in the scheduling email to reschedule or cancel the testing appointment. Failure to show up for a scheduled testing session without prior notice may render the applicant ineligible for employment.

What to Bring to the Test Session

Applicants must bring a driver's license at each testing session. If your driver's license does not have a photo, you must provide an additional form of photo identification. Applicants are not permitted to participate in the testing process without proper photo identification.

What NOT to Bring to the Test Session

- Reference materials (e.g., dictionaries, textbooks, etc.)
- Pens and/or pencils (these will be provided)
- Reading materials (e.g., books, magazines, newspapers, etc.)
- Work-related materials
- Briefcases or bags (e.g., backpacks, suitcases, etc.)
- Papers (e.g., resumes, notification letters, notes, blank paper, etc.)
- Cellular phones, smart watches, pagers, beepers, etc. (alarms on watches must be turned off)
- For test security purposes, electronics should be turned off and held by the test administrator.
- Other electronic devices (e.g., mp3s, iPods, iPads, calculators, tape recorders, cameras, video games, etc.)
- Firearms (e.g., if you are currently in a law enforcement position you may not bring your firearm into any testing facility)

What to Wear

- Written Testing – No specified attire
- Panel Interview – Business attire is recommended

How Long do the Tests Take to Complete

- Written Testing – Approximately three hours
- Panel Interview – Approximately two hours

Test Preparation Guide

Applicants must also promptly respond to Special Agent Recruitment Coordinators or HR Representatives who reach out to schedule a testing session. Failure to respond will result in closure of your applicant file.
- Show Up – Failure to show up for a scheduled testing session will result in closure of your applicant file.

Those caught cheating are discontinued from further consideration for the Special Agent position.
- Discussing the Tests – Applicants are not permitted to discuss any part of the tests and interview questions with anyone during or after the testing process. This ensures other potential applicants are not given an unfair advantage or disadvantage in the selection process. Applicants are required to sign a nondisclosure form. If an applicant is found to have violated this agreement, he or she will be disqualified.
- Leaving the Premises – Applicants are not permitted to leave the testing premises during testing. The breaks between tests will be short in length.

Section III: Test Taking Tips

- You will do your best on the test if you stay calm and relaxed.
- Pay careful attention to all directions before beginning.
- For each question, read the entire question and all response options carefully before deciding upon an answer.
- If you do not know the answer to a question, eliminate the response options that you know to be incorrect or probably incorrect and then guess from the remaining response options.
- Your score is based only on the number of questions you answer correctly. You are not penalized for answering questions incorrectly. Therefore, you should answer every question, even questions that you must guess.
- Be sure that you mark your answer correctly.
- Ignore any patterns of A's, B's, C's, or D's on your answers. These correct answer positions are chosen randomly and there is no way to improve your chances by guessing based on an answer pattern.

Section IV: Test Overview

Written Testing

TEST OF OBSERVATION & RECALL

The ability to observe and correctly recall details is a critical competency for successful performance in the Special Agent job. Correctly remembering information is essential for decision-making and problem-solving, activities that prevail on the job. Special Agents must be able to extract relevant details from complex environments. The Test of Observation and Recall is designed to select applicants who will be able to handle the very demanding investigative work, including complex tasks such as surveillance on the job.

The questions are designed to assess your ability to understand the important elements of an action-filled scenario and to correctly recall details from it. The kind of details asked in these questions is different from ordinary situations in which recall involves a general summary of the plot. Rather, it is the kind of remembering that is required with complex material when some action with the information may later be necessary.

The test format asks the applicant to recall details based on a law enforcement scenario presented in a video. The details are based on different aspects of the scenario. Therefore, answering requires careful inspection and focused thought about what information is relevant and what information is not.

The following information will give you some suggestions about how to approach the questions and some information about how you can develop your recall skills.

- Every question on the test is drawn from a video-based fictional scenario that depicts an aspect of Special Agent work. There may be details in the video that may not actually apply to the daily aspect of Special Agent work. In answering the questions, it is important that you accept every fact in the scenario as true. Remember that you are not being judged on your knowledge of law enforcement, but rather on your ability to correctly observe and recall details on the basis of a given set of facts.
- You should be actively engaged in the video for the duration of the video. Your eyes should not leave the screen while taking notes, so you do not miss any details.
- Not all information on the test is of the same type. There can be information about events or there can be information about categories of things. Information can also be positive or negative. Usually, information is positive (for example, the tire tracks were made by a truck), but information that something is NOT the case is also useful (for example, the tire tracks were not made by a light-weight truck).
- There is no penalty for guessing on this test; therefore, you should answer every question. If you guess blindly, you have one chance in four of getting the right answer. However, your chance of choosing the right answer just by guessing is greatly improved by using a little mental detective work to eliminate one or more response options that are probably or certainly wrong.

Test Preparation Guide

WRITING EXERCISE

In the Writing Exercise, applicants are asked to write a fact-based essay. The applicant is given a scenario with a set of 10-15 facts and asked to write a three paragraph memo to a fictional supervisor. The Writing Exercise does not require any prior knowledge of law enforcement.

At the start of the exercise, applicants are given a set of background materials to use. Applicants have 45 minutes to complete the Writing Exercise. Applicants will complete their written tests in a nationwide testing center with a DEA partner on a computer where they will type their responses.

The Writing Exercise measures the following critical skills and abilities:

- Ability to communicate in writing
- Ability to attend to detail
- Ability to evaluate information and make judgments/decisions

Tips for the Writing Exercise

- Read the instructions carefully. Make sure you understand what the exercise requires. Do not use bullet form for your answer or you will automatically fail the test.
- You will be given a white board to take notes. However, any material written on the white board is not admissible for scoring. Only what is typed on the computer will be scored as the Writing Exercise submission.
- You should ask the Test Administrator any questions you have regarding the instructions for the test.
- This test measures your writing ability, so ensure your response reflects your individual style of writing, not a list of copied facts. Copying facts verbatim will result in an automatic failure of the test.
- As this is a test for DEA Special Agent selection that assesses writing, you will not have access to spelling and grammar checks during the exam. It is recommended that you proofread your work thoroughly.

Structured Panel Interview

DEA uses a structured panel interview procedure to ensure reliability, validity, fairness, and practicality by: (1) asking the same job-related questions of all applicants; (2) rating all applicants according to the same standards or benchmarks (behavioral examples); and (3) having multiple independent interviewers reach agreement about each applicant's interview score.

The structured panel interview is based upon the well-researched premise that past behavior is the best predictor of future behavior. By asking applicants for specific examples of how they acted or reacted in the past, valid and reliable predictions of future behavior can be made. The panel interview is structured in the same manner for all applicants to ensure the information used to make a final selection decision is both based on the behaviors important for job success and comparable across individual applicants.

In the structured interview for entry-level Special Agent applicants, past achievements and behaviors are requested from the applicant for six standard questions and follow a standard format. The interview is administered by a panel of three Special Agents and takes approximately one hour. The three Special Agent evaluators have been trained thoroughly on how to rate applicants' performance using standardized scoring criteria.

Tips for the Structured Interview

- Be yourself.
- The evaluators will be taking notes during the interview to assist them in documenting the results. Do not let this distract you.
- Provide detailed information when answering the interview questions. Do not be modest in your responses. To provide the best examples of your skills and abilities, draw from all of your life's experiences (not just the most recent ones). Experiences can be from work, volunteer work, school, family, or social situations.
- Do not make assumptions about what the evaluators are seeking. The interview instructions are straightforward. There are no "trick" questions.

What to Expect at the Structured Interview

- When you arrive for testing, you will be checked in and asked to provide your driver's license. If your driver's license does not have a photo, you must have an additional form of photo identification.
- At the beginning of the interview, the following directions will be read to you:
"We'd like to spend some time getting to know more about you. During this time, we will be asking you questions about your past experiences and qualifications and how you have dealt with various situations. The written instructions we provided to you explain the process we will follow."
- Your interview will begin once the instructions have been read to you. The panel members will rotate asking questions. If you cannot think of an answer to a question, the interviewer will suggest that they move onto the next question and return later to the question that could not be answered. You will not be penalized for this. If, however, you fail to answer one or more questions during the interview, this may adversely affect your score.

Test Preparation Guide

- The evaluators are trained to keep the interview moving and complete it within 60 minutes. Remember to keep your answers concise and specific - answers that are too lengthy will detract from your ability to complete the interview. However, provide sufficient detail to receive full credit for your answer.

Final Notes

DEA Special Agents play a vital role in accomplishing the mission of the DEA. The screening is rigorous and can take a long time to complete. Your cooperation and patience are appreciated as you move through the process.
